"Teglyn" had a recent survey in 2015 which surveyors comments and conclusion came back as following:

"Teglyn" is free from osmosis, this particular model is known to be a good all round sturdy seaworthy cruising yacht. Her structure internally appears well founded, her interior upholstery and structural surfaces are in good condition through and well maintained. Her sail wardrobe is seen as adequate for sail purposes with roller headsail ad in mast reefing bonus. Her engine installation appears well maintained and is believed to be original and is certainly sizeable in horsepower as an auxiliary for a craft of this size. With this in mind "Teglyn" will continue to give a good service life to her owner as she was found in very reasonable structural condition".
