General Description

The design concept with the Halberg-Rassy 46 is to facilitate short handed sailing. This vessel is both high-pointing and fast but also seakindly. This is a yacht made for around the world cruising or local waters. This Halberg-Rassy 46 has completed the ARC and returned to Europe as deck cargo. There is space for all the modern comfort aids. Hull and deck are GRP, built under the supervision of Lloyds. The hull is insulated above the water line. Deck is GRP sandwich construction 35mm for strength and insulation with teak atop. The lead keel is attached with stainless steel bolts. The mast is stepped on a base on the cabintop directly over a reinforced bulkhead. Cockpit protected by permanent windscreen in tempered glass in light alloy frames. The middle panel is hinged and opens. Sprayhood and cockpit canopy with stainless frame providing full cockpit cover. Handrails, companionway, hatch guides, deck, sole and seats in cockpit are all in solid Bangkok teak. The cabin is done in selected mahogany, hand rubbed and treated to a silk smooth finish. The seagoing galley is so arranged that one can work safely even in heavy seas, and has deep, double sinks and a well-insulated icebox. A fine example of this trusted cruiser and maintained in top order and wintered ashore under its custom cover.

Accommodation

General Description

Shorthanded sailing is easy in this modern cruiser. It is both high-pointing and fast, but also seakindly. It is a boat made to go around the world or cruise local waters. This Hallberg-Rassy 46 has completed the ARC and returned to Europe as deck cargo. There is space for all the modern comfort aids. Hull and deck are GRP, built under supervision of Lloyd's Register of Shipping. A Lloyd's certificate issued. The hull is insulated above the water line. Deck is GRP sandwich construction, 35mm for strength and insulation. The lead keel is attached with stainless steel bolts. The mast is stepped on a base on the cabintop directly over a reinforced bulk head. Cockpit protected by permanent windscreens in tempered glass in light alloy frames. The middle pane is hinged and opens. Sprayhood in synthetic material with aluminum frames with full cockpit tent providing additional shelter. Handrails, companionway, hatch guides, sole and seats in cockpit are all in solid Bangkok teak. The cabin is done in selected mahogany, hand-rubbed and treated to a silk smooth finish. The seagoing galley so arranged that one can work safely even in heavy seas, and has deep, double sinks and a well-insulated icebox. A fine example of this trusted cruiser and maintained in top order and wintered ashore under its custom cover.
