Accommodation

As you enter the Jeanneau Merry Fisher 795 via the large sliding doors you have the galley on the starboard side, here you have a sink and a space for a removable gas stove or a internal gas stove as well as a space for kettle. The pilots seat located forward of the galley also moves upwards allowing for more useful space.

To the portside you have the saloon, here you have space to comfortably fit 4 people around a large table, with the potential to fit 6. The table can also lower into a double berth with the help of an infill. One of the seats in the saloon is also reversible meaning it can be made into a co-pilot seat allowing you to face forward when underway.

The most forward part of the boat you will see a double berth allowing for two people to comfortably sleep with the help of a triangular infill which sweetly fits into a space close to the head, this allows for extra room within the cabin. The head located forward of the helm hosts an excellent amount of space and has a very reliable and useful marine toilet with holding tank.

The bright, open feel of the Merry Fisher 795 is iconic and favourable with many customers, there is no feel of crampedness and it comfortably allows you to relax in any time of the year.
